Watersoaked tracks and turf, the result of a tremendous downpour of rain during the night, and a dull tent representations from the Canadian and sunless sky threatening another are what officials and competitors found on their arrival at the Stadium this morning for the continuation of the Olympic games. These adverse conditions were the more unfortunate, as it is the first Saturday of the present revival of the Olympiad, and there had been expectations of a better attendance than had favored the games during the week.

Big Programme To-Day.

A varied programme had been arranged to bring out the people. The morning again is given over to archery and fencing, but for the afternoon the most attractive events are scheduled in the hope of drawing a crowd. These include the final in the 3,200-metre steeplechase, the final in the 200-metre breast-stroke swimming match, the perts the United Kingdom also tool throwing of the discus "as at Athens," and the finals in the fancy diving, the the 200 metre breast stroke swimming 5,000-metre cycle race, the tug of war, the 100-kilometre cycle race and the winner, with Robinson second. The final in the 3,200-metre steeplechase was won this afternoon by Russell, United Kingdom. His time was 10 minutes 47 4-5 seconds. Robertson, United Kingdom, was second, and J. L. Eisele, New York A. C., was third.

The weather brightened up somewhat in the afternoon and the lowerpriced stands were filled up with the usual Saturday afternoon sporting enthusiasts. The people, however, distrusted the weather and came out laden with umbrellas and waterproof cablegrams from all parts of the United States expressing "sympathy with the unfair treatment accorded them." Other sympathizers have asked if the reports that the committee had decided to withdraw the team from future competitions were correct. The committee has no idea of doing anything of the kind. In common with the members of the team, the committee complain bitterly of the treatment meted out to the Americans by the Amateur Athletic Association, but, as set forth in these despatches yesterday, they intend to go on with the event, and they be made to go on with the event, and they are to go on with the event and flight it out under whatever rules the committee in charge that had finished his go, say about his visit to the President, except that he had finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that if when the add finished his go, and replied that still hope to show the best score of any nation in the track and field competi-
